

Presence Poems From Ghost Ranch

The Presence

I sit within my room, and joy to find
That Thou who always lov'st, art with me here,
That I am never left by Thee behind,
But by thyself Thou keep'st me ever near;
The fire burns brighter when with Thee I look,
And seems a kinder servant sent to me;
With gladder heart I read thy holy book,
Because thou art the eyes by which I see;
This aged chair, that table, watch and door

Around in ready service ever wait;
Nor can I ask of Thee a menial more
To fill the measure of my large estate,
For Thou thyself, with all a father's care,
Where'er I turn, art ever with me there.

“How do I love thee? Let me count the ways.” In this book, Howard F. Stein counts for us the myriad ways he has come to love the high desert beauty of Ghost Ranch, New Mexico. Amid the mesas, mountains, spires, and sky, over more than twenty-five years of visits (or should we say pilgrimages?), he has borne witness to its very special power, presence, and overwhelming Sense of Place. A widely published poet, Stein now wields his razor-sharp gifts for language and imagery to paint for us an indelible picture of this unique land, and through it of our planet as a whole and our human place in it. These are the lessons of the rock, he tells us, the lessons it has been proclaiming through all of time: I am the only Earth you have. Treat me with love, and I will gift you with eternal beauty.
