The Tiger-Dragon connection came to life when the USS Stonewall Jackson played a crucial role in the Korean War. As the United States battled North Korean and Chinese forces, the ship proved its mettle by providing relentless fire support to ground troops. It became the embodiment of American strength, striking fear into the hearts of enemy combatants. The Dragon had awakened.

Mutual Respect and Cooperation

As the tides of war turned and the Korean Peninsula began seeking peace, an unexpected turn of events brought both the Tiger and the Dragon closer together. The USS Stonewall Jackson played a pivotal role in facilitating peace talks, demonstrating that even amidst conflict, understanding and diplomacy could prevail.

The Chinese government, recognizing the ship's powerful presence and its significance as a symbol of enduring strength, extended an invitation for the USS Stonewall Jackson to visit Shanghai. The crew received a warm welcome from Chinese officials and civilians alike, marking a historic moment of mutual respect and cooperation between the two nations.

A Legendary Legacy

The legacy of the USS Stonewall Jackson transcends time and borders. It serves as a testament to the power of camaraderie and the potential for peace, even in the midst of the most intense conflicts. The ship's story is a reminder that beyond the politics and animosity, there are bonds that can be formed and cherished between nations.

Today, the USS Stonewall Jackson stands as a living memorial, reminding future generations of the importance of unity and the pursuit of peace. Its spirit lives on, symbolizing the everlasting friendship and respect between the United States and China.

The Tiger and the Dragon, once fierce adversaries, found solace and understanding aboard the USS Stonewall Jackson. The remarkable journey of this legendary warship showcases the transcendence of borders and the potential for cooperation and friendship even in the most turbulent times. Let us remember the legacy of the USS Stonewall Jackson and strive to emulate the spirit of unity it represents, building bridges that span from east to west, from nation to nation.

It all came down to fate. At stake: $4,000 billion of the world's trade and 20% of the population. The Taiwanese Tiger and the Chinese Dragon are squaring up at last.

The island of Taiwan, long coveted by the Chinese, is separated from China by 100 miles of the Straits of Taiwan. For years there have been tensions between the two countries, with China wanting unification but many in Taiwan preferring independence. The conflict has reached boiling point and the USA has sworn to defend the island. Now billions of lives are threatened in a nuclear exchange between America and its trade partner and foe across the Pacific, China.

It all came down to two people: Commander Nathan Blake and May Hsin. He's commander of the submarine USS Stonewall Jackson; she's an officer with the National Security Bureau, Taiwan's intelligence agency. They must both wrestle with their own demons to prevail. For Nathan, it's his conflicting rules of engagement, whereas May is undercover in the enemy's lair but finding warmth in the snake's coils.

You've been called up. You will serve on board the USS Stonewall Jackson and go along with May Hsin into the backstreets of Shanghai. It's down to you now. Fate is cruel; get used to it.
